What Logs Does Logtivity Record?

Activity Logs · https://logtivity.io/docs/what-logs/

Logtivity has some support for almost all actions in the WordPress core and for most WordPress plugins and themes.

Logtivity can records any details that are stored in the _postmeta table and the _options table. This means that Logtivity records almost all changes to post and custom post types, and also almost all changes to settings. You can control whether these settings are recorded by going to "Team Settings" and "Activity Log Settings".

For example, if you're running an eCommerce site, Logtivity can track detailed changes to WooCommerce products. Our logs will record updates specific WooCommerce fields, such as the SKU, sales price, inventory count, and more.

Please contact us for specific details on any core features or plugins that you are using.